ABOUT ME

Briefly

I'm a regular guy with a lot of experience under my belt. For the last two years, I've been a site administrator. I did a lot of different work, from filling out reports to writing code. After working for six months, I realized I was stuck. I decided to learn something new. In September, I started learning Frontend. Took offline courses in HTML, CSS, JS, and React. I'm now self-taught in React (taking the Samurai's Way course on YouTube, solving assignments on Codewars, and repeating JS on FreeCodeCamp). Also know the basics of Liquid and GraphQL. My spoken English is not very good, but I understand written English very well and hardly ever use a translator. Learning English is the next thing I will be doing.
